

Enter a single letter in each blank square in the diagram to form interlocking answers, each of which spell out two distinct common words that differ only by the given letter pairs. See the example below to get a better idea. With the given arrangement of letters and blanks, only RITZY and RISKY can be formed. More than one pair of words may appear to be possible at first, but the crossing letters will help eliminate possibilities. ANSWERS, PAGE 76

